The tale of Quick Bridge

Well where to start! That was the question posed by the select band of Hashers mulling around Quick Bridge, the Hares had managed to secrete the dust in a very dark and secluded lane. Never mind once found, onwards and upwards to New Waste, a challenging start - up and up and up!

The dazzling starlight night guided our way. Orion, the Plough and the Great Bear provided much needed trail pointers, proving slightly more useful than the surfeit, or was it dearth of dust? In all honesty both extremes were in evidence! Both the shorts and longs parted company and proceeded on their ways with little other grumblings.

The shorts were happily trotting around the starlit Devon countryside until Pissed N Broke was found in the lead; this led to much confusion on him stumbling upon a check. The shorts quickly disappeared in all directions attempting find the 'On On', however the weak link, our esteemed Pissed N Broke illustrated the need for remedial houndsmanship. Having run up and down the trial three times remonstrating 'lost dust, no dust and check back!', it was finally determined by the better educated group than all possible other routes ended in a check backs. 'Are you sure!' came the beleaguered and now increasingly menacing call from the darkness. Are, well there is an arrow here - I'm stood on it. Hurrah, we were off again with much 'cat calling' being aimed at the defenceless Pissed N Broke.

Means you found the right one. Call "On On" loudly

Having successfully completed a transit woodland, a watery crossing (something that has not been much in evidence over the past months, watch out next week – Oh dear if you are reading this in the pub the threat is old news!) and a couple of shiggy obstacles we finally arrived back at the 'Check In' satisfied that the hares had done their duty. Off to the On Down!

The On Down, may I say a tame affair as the GM excelled himself yet again in demonstrating high quality crowd management. Two birthday announcements accompanied by a glorious tribute and not much else, gossip was very thin on the ground.

NB – the AGM is on the 8th April at the Burrator Inn.

Hares please note!

Before planning a hash on Forestry Commission land in the North/West Devon area could you please complete, and submit the general permission application form which can be found on the Home Page.

Thanks very much.

On On!
