Boxing Day 1900th Hash

Pretty much just a handful of hung over, very full hashers who tried to push themselves on only to struggle asking each other if they had had a nice Christmas.

Fergie made an amazing effort at setting the hash, making cake (edible snowballs) and bunting for us along with arranging for a stop at her Mum's for cocktails (alcoholic snowballs)!

As myself, Chopper and Ginger Rogers arrived we had a feeling that it might have just been us and that poor Chopper would have had to do the long by himself – the upside being we could have all the food and booze to ourselves. No such luck though as more people started to arrive and we had to share...

We had 2 virgins join us that evening that went straight into the longs but disappeared before the pub prompting Hurricane to ask "What did you do with the virgins, Chopper?".

The longs were joined by 2 others who are normally excellent at time keeping... welcome Aimless and H3.

The hash itself was a good mixture of terrain and was wonderfully decorated with tinsel, which managed to fool Glani at a check. Myself, Biff and Ginger Rogers were fairly concerned at a creepy ghost man telling us to run faster from the darkness of some woods

(we were hoping that we were all joint hallucinating but it did make us run faster away from it!). I managed to run into a branch sticking out and then trip over a log on the floor after making the statement “There really should be more injuries on the hash, I don’t know how we get away with it?!” – idiot.

The White Hart Inn, Bridestowe were very welcoming. They kept the kitchen open for us after 9 waiting for us all to arrive and order which was very good of them seeing as there about 15 of us. Don’t go near the cat though as it will attack!

Biff awarded Fergie for setting the hash on Boxing Day and we congratulated her on her well-endowed with dangly things.

The main event of the evening was Biff getting biffed because the silly woman forgot her 1900th t-shirt we had been sorting out for so long! We all got to have a go on Biff, except Glani “I get a go anytime I want”

Thank you to the 4 people who actually wore their 1900th t-shirt on the 1900th hash

I leave you with a tasteful joke from Glani:
What’s the difference between a snowman and a snow woman?
