Short shorts prevailed ... what a triumph!!!!

Well I never... what an enjoyable and adventurous hash ... and our intrepid band of short shorts (Uncle, Cheddar and Minnie ... joined by not quite a virgin Kate) plus daughter of Luffly and friend (sorry ... lost their hash names ...) seemed to be the only people to have done the whole of the short trail!!!!

It was fantastic ... tricky, slippy, muddy, wet, low hanging vegetation, brambles, potential precipitous falls into a raging stream (or is it a river) ... and a bit of getting lost ... and very arduous ... a real gritty hash!!

Now it was a bit long ... we were out for close to one and half hours ... and Cheddar might not have enjoyed it all quite as much as the rest of us ... lost on a steep stream bank surrounded by brambles and trying to agree which way was home at close to 20:40 there was some sense of humour failure!!!

Anyway we'd like to congratulate the hare ... but suggest that a better estimate of the length of time needed to encounter the hazards and what's achievable by short legs in an hour PLUS the beginning was tricky. We only ended up on the correct main loop of the hash (after the initial loop to get us going) with hare help. If not for that we may have faced the same fate as others combining occasional sniffs of trail with hasher ingenuity in lost dust diy trail making!

Wild encounters ...

According to reports from Dirty Oar and Gannet, Brock was spotted developing a taste for our trail ...

And Zac (as yet unnamed) had an encounter of the Deer Kind ... it seems there were several during the evening

On Down

Mixed views on change of ownership at White Thorn. Your scribe was looking forward to the past welcome and atmosphere. It seems to have lost something and seem bleaker ... not to forget the absolute deadline on chips at 21:00!

And horror of horrors ... Bad reports on the cheesy chips ... suspicion that cheese might be alien ... or even to have come out of a spray can! Yes it is possible >>>>

Beer report: Apparently the Devon Dumpling at 5% was really good ... but the Cornish Ale was definitely off!! Another alien species!

Yummy ... Easy cheese ☹️

Hash goes to Hollywood

Congratulations to the Committee. A great event, excellent food ... a fabulous band ... and I now know there are 2 hotels locally called Moorland *** Hotel. Managed to visit them both in delightful weather!

Up and Coming Stuff

Apparently there is something exciting happening in Yelverton on 29th March ... An Activity Day ... more details from Lost.

If you're interested in local food ... an unashamed plug for Transition Tavistock's fun packed afternoon for all ages on Saturday 14th March – yummy locally sourced lunch and tea, wild foraging with a specialist in the Meadows, expert composter Nicky Scott, Love Food Hate Waste expert Andy Barron, local producers market ... and the TT AGM and displays! ...
