The Tale of Two Hashes

Wot no scribe!! How will everybody know what happened, who got lost, muddly, wet etc. I certainly don't, so you won't find out here!

Luffly and I had a good walk to the pub, minding our own business and putting the world to rights. We were greeted at the pub by the locals rubbing their hands gleefully at the thought of two hashes appearing together in the same pub. I think they imagined fisticuffs between us. Drake was running at Shaugh Bridge and arrived before you lot. They looked somewhat confused to see other hashers and then took themselves off quietly to a side room - not feeling brave enough to face the stronger hash!

The landlord confessed that he was very worried about upsetting us - he had looked on our website and seen that we are no longer friends with a nearby pub. He did say that we could go to the White Thorn every week if we wanted, (sensible man) but I think the runs would become rather boring and predictable.

Good news - Lurking has returned from wherever he was lurking. Now don't go and hide again, we want to see you every week!! Also back were Denise and Bush Tucker.

More good news - Miss has been dug up from under the patio (see previous hash mag) and is now amongst us once more. No trace of mud or cement either.

Tamar Valley Hash House Harriers

At the Hash Hush Up and Under Sheila was humiliated for not checking in, and Happy Birthday was sung (but I don't know who to). Autumn Trail participants Hurricane, Stopcock, Ernie and Scupper-sucker were congratulated.

Brown Gin Run - by the time you read this you will all have got wet and muddy in true Brown Gin fashion. For those who don't know the origins of this run here are a few facts. Angus Colville was a true hasher and eccentric, a real gentleman, who lived life to the full. He was well known for inviting Hashers back to his place for a 'Brown Gin', his favourite tippie. TVH3s most tuneful "Happy Birthday" singing was started by him, when he deliberately sang badly, despite having an exceptional singing voice. He always hashed through the river never over bridges. He was murdered in Guatamala when he refused to hand over his wallet.

Announcements

- No dogs on 5th November run please, on account of planned fireworks.
- Technical and polo shirts can be ordered from Penny Farting.
- Quiz night, 1st December, more details and tickets to be available soon.

And finally - the big night out of the year, will be a celebration of Twelfth Night on Saturday 5th January at Lamerton Village Hall. A night not to be missed, with live music, food and lots of Tudor and pagan fun and games. Tickets available soon. Put the date in your new 2013 diaries!

On On!!
