Well what a Educating Hash !!!

It was quite clear from the start that poor Nipple deep did not possess a tides table book , much to the relief of my hashing partner Gannet who had major concerns of the possibility of falling in the river as we crossed , but I soon put her fears to rest when it was clear that nipple deep had to quickly replan his route on dry land with expert guidance from Posh Pinny.

Before commencement Nipple deep had to become the Maristow Gamekeepers best friend, as I can tell you from past experience one must be very careful when setting a Hash in Pheasant territory because if they are disturbed from roosting they cant see very well in the dark & fall out of the trees & along comes Mr Fox who then has a bit of fun or if you don't run fast enough they fall on your head!!!!

Whilst following this expertly laid Hash, Gannet made the following observations , there seemed to be a lot of potential man traps alongside the Electrified fencing. Were these wire mesh shapes strategically placed to deter Hashers?????. It was also noted that Argles was not a fan of the colourful pheasant, such a shame as there are over 200,000 reared in this area per year!!!!. Perhaps they pay him a visit & eat his plants ????

Pheasant Facts

Introduced by the Romans

2 to 22 eggs in a clutch

UK wide 20 million birds released per annum

A successful cock bird may have a harem of up to half a dozen hens, however, the majority of cocks are less successful, & fail to breed

Cock birds are known to be sensitive to vibrations proceeding an earthquake & there are many records of cocks crowing vigorously before an earthquake.

Pheasant Joke time

A pheasant was standing in a field chatting to a bull 'I would love to be able to get to the top of yonder tree', sighed the pheasant, 'but I haven't got the energy' 'Well, why don't you nibble on some of my droppings?' replied the bull. 'They're packed with nutrients'. The pheasant pecked at a lump of dung & found that it actually gave him enough strength to reach the first branch of the tree. The next day, after eating some dung, he reached the second branch. And so on. Finally, after a fortnight, there he was proudly perched at the top of the tree. Whereupon he was spotted by a farmer who dashed into the farmhouse, emerged with a shotgun, & shot the pheasant right out of the tree.

The moral of the story: Bullshit might get you to the top , but it wont keep you there.
