MINCE PIE RUN

Hobo led a trail through Plym Woods. I'm not sure where it went as I was one of the pack of ten disorientated hashers who followed a barbed wire fence along a ravine, squelched through two fields containing knee deep shiggy and then ran an extra thirty minutes back to the start from Bickleigh Barracks. Apologies to virgin Martin (one of Grandpa's neighbours) who got caught up in the 'extra longs'.

It seems that Hobo got lost too as he was nowhere to be seen at the Lopes Arms. Shame because he missed Luffly's Christmas nipple lights. Very festive.

Even though I have been away for nearly a month it seems there was little new gossip. Therefore I will regale you with some facts about Patagonia:

- It boasts the third largest ice field in the world
- There are no llamas, only guanacos
- The typical strong winds generated are sometimes called 'Williwaw' by the natives
- Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid spent months there after fleeing the USA
- A population of 2 million live in a million square kilometers
- The sheer granite monolith Mount FitzRoy (3359m) was first climbed in 1952 by Lionel Terray and Guido Magnone
- Perito Moreno glacier is one of the largest fresh water reserves in the world
