This week's historical note - England 1702

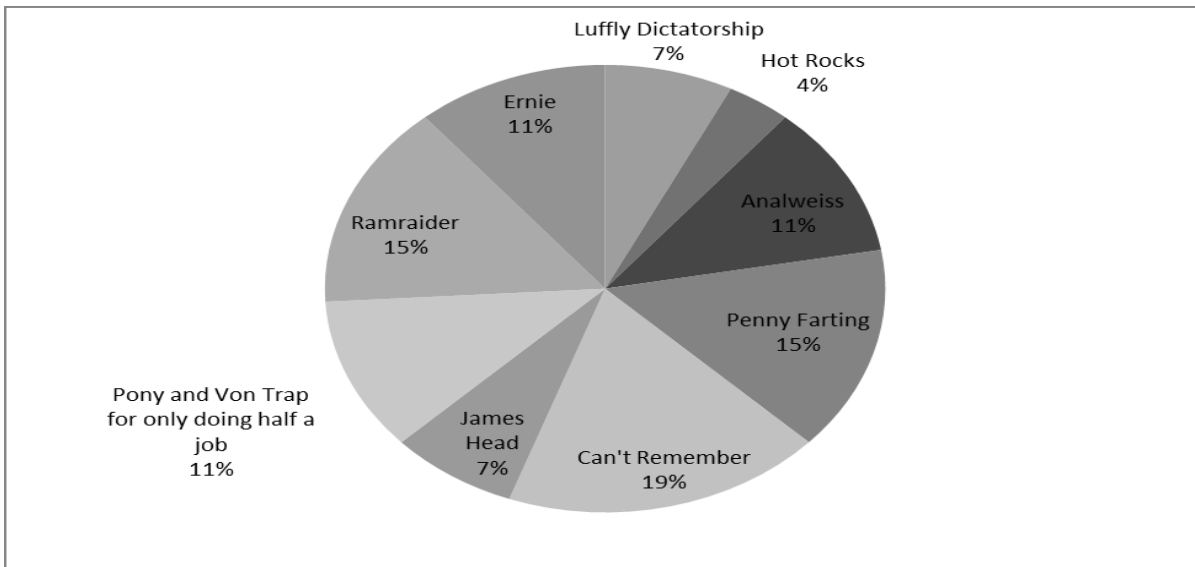

11 March - The first regular English language national newspaper, The Daily Courant, is published for the first time in Fleet Street in the City of London; it covers only foreign news. This edition isn't much better!

This issue

Or

Just to remind you all last weeks predictions for the GM were:

However, Breaking News – The latest odds from the high street bookmakers.

GM

Ernie - 2:1 - A good bet on heavy ground, staying power proved on the last outing. The punters favorite, bets have been flying in!

Carn't Remember - Evens – From the stables of that well admired trainer Hurricane This tested filly has not been seen over the course for some time, insiders say in training she is performing well - has an outside chance. The bookies have seen some recent interest.

Ramraider – 4:1 – Possibly seen as an outsider in some quarters (his stables), however this well favored old timer is seen as a sound bet. The odds look good get the bets in as the odds will shorten!

Joint Masters

DoDo - 2:1 — A reasonable set of odds, sound performer in all weathers, however favours the firmer ground these days. Worth a quid.

Biff – Evens - From the stables of Sir Glanville of Tavistock. This filly has seen a rapid improvement in form of over the past year, the training methods used in these stables could be questioned, all dope tests have proved negative? The bookies have seen some large bets placed, a lot of recent interest.

Quote from your well-loved Hash Pundit!

*Well folks this year will be hard call, of course I have some personal interest, but it's a wide open field. I don't know which field but there's one out there somewhere!
