Next Run No due to Coronavirus

So a virtual run, can't be a hash due to social distancing so a little indulgence and a lot of artistic licence.

First the news

Windy, Racey, Well Laid, Underlay and Commando are being pursued by Interpol for stealing poolside inflatables from hotels in Spain!

We suspect they will Lilo for a few weeks.

Chopper has packed in his latest job as a Lumberjack, just couldn't hack it!

Fergie has concerns of H.M.P Princetown latest attempt to diversify by running a brothel. Her boss reassured her, we know the Pro's and Con's.

To set the scene, as I'm here in a fantastic area of Grasmere, a lumpy run planned so some music to set the pace. Today it's the prodigy from 2009, 'Invaders must die' none of this namby pamby M.O.R bollocks classic album and classic venue

Buffy gave the gathered throng “thank you for turning out on this fantastic evening” 1 run/hash 6miles 4 fells! The hash are in fine form and fitness all looking forward to the testing run (not hash) up onto the tops in good weather.

From the off Nashers took the lead from Wobbly up to the open fell before the rest of the hounds caught them and headed off to Alcock Tarn. Looking down the valley towards the lake Glani and grandpa could clearly be seen taking a shortcut towards Gray Crag, this in turn fired up Chopper and Ernie to be the first to Nab Scar only to find a check back.

The rest of the pack following the cries of “maintain your height” from Trehanrehan and Tampax.

Now with the music kicking in and in my stride I pass Blind Cove and gain the ridge to Heron Pike for a re-group. Hot Rocks had arranged a drink station with some nice cool Collytown Blonde to quench the thirst.

The dust now well spread out but found and honed in on by Omen as we followed on the long ridge to Great Rigg. Scrote and Gannet contoured around missing the hi-spot and accelerated to Stone Arthur before admiring the view below and allowing the rest of the hounds to catch up. Looking down Glani and Grandpa followed Green Head Gill a risky move but they seemed to float over the rocks and bracken.

The final descent to the pub saw the hounds all come together for the final gate and back to the check in.

A fantastic run, not hash

In the pub we waited but no Glani or Bob! They had last been seen running down the Green Head Gill towards the pit of abyss! A couple of locals said an old TVH3 member had asked to see this pit, a guy named Firkin Jeffery. He made such an impression on them they removed the safety sign and fence! His cries of ON ON could still be heard. Funnily enough when mountain rescue returned from their search they thought they could hear not only the ON ON but a ARE YOU faintly coming up from the pit.

We carried on eating and drinking only 2 down! (Bob and Glani, not important)

Birthdays

Naughty boy 69

Racey 21

Nipple deep 90

A warning for dog walkers on this part of the fell, a flock of sheep rushed the walker and knocked them to the ground, luckily they where only lightly grazed.

A native American that drank 10 gallons of Typho has been found dead in his own Tepee.

Enough from me, Lost signing off
