Just a Helping Hand or Ritual Sheep Abuse – GM Inquires

So guilty as charged?

Picture the act, a lamb caught in a fence struggling to gain freedom is pounce upon by three Hashers. Was this them about to take advantage of the situation or save the poor distressed animal. Stopcock and this weeks "Hack" Scuppersucker were first on the scene ably supported by DoDo. At this stage all gathered around the hind quarters of the incapacitated animal. The shout went up lift it's hind legs that will do it!

Unbeknown to the three protagonists, the gathering thong, sorry throng, watching the spectacular (may I add being whipped into a Roman Caligula style mob by the GM) were baying for action.

To the mob's clear dismay, the lamb made a successful final bid for freedom to escape the clutches of the three. The mob's boos and other calls soon abated as they realised that the opportunity for mischief still remained – especially the GM and Sturmeroid when they noticed Scuppersucker with a grin on his face.

Do I need to describe the On Down !

However the postscript:

"You can rescue lambs by cutting the fence around their heads, this damages and weakens the fence. What you do is catch the lamb by its two hind legs pick it up like a wheel barrow and pull backwards. Tipping them forwards lowers their head enough so that when you pull back the lamb just slips out of the fence."

Historical Notes - this week 1830 (hint today's run)

The Swing Riots started these were a widespread uprising by agricultural workers; it began with the destruction of threshing machines in the Elham Valley area of East Kent in the summer of 1830, and by early December had spread throughout the whole of southern England and East Anglia.

To go short – that was the question!

WobblyKnob – Far Far Away

Evidently our esteemed Hare Master Charlie has become the measure of the decision making process for – do I go short or long?

This service is currently provided by his bright orange running top.

Sludge made good use of this new facility, Lydford Tor seemed Far Far Away at 5 past 3 – therefore let's go short!

A Run Success – The Verdict!

A well done the delightful duo Dippledeep and Posy Pinny. However, there were some comments about a Hobbit 'Here and Back' undertone. Hurricane evidently caused this, I'm sure he went out clean shaven, but came back looking like a Tolken oddity or even a Dartmoor Yeti!

For those watching the nights as draw in next week's run may require the a little more light on the later proceeding – check out the torches folks.
