(Apologies to Danny Scheinmann)

It all started in the pub in front of a roaring log fire. Pimp was recovering from a bout of man flu and coughed at least twice, H came in having left Delilah at home with his man flu and then Well Laid and Underlay arrived with some wonderful tales about Windy. Windy injured himself whilst competing to stay ahead of the younger and fitter Well Laid on a run, he should know better at his age. And talking of his age he apparently left his keys in Well Laid's car thus locking both himself and Racey out of their house. Racey was reduced to rolling her eyes and muttering about old people's homes. Talking about his house, Windy is also suffering nightmares about his builders tramping over his newly laid perfect floor even getting up in the night and investigating by torchlight! I think some kind of institution is indicated! Traumatized by this experience he begged Well Laid for Underlay to go down on his floor to protect it from the builders boots. I don't know what Underlay thought about this but I bet she didn't like it! Not content with this descent into senility Windy also felt compelled to dismantle his Wurlitzer to oil his moving parts, Racey signs the forms next week. Nipple Deep continues to limp with his knee problem, Uncle didn't run 'cos of her woman flu and Denise went on the short due to a poorly shoulder. Well I ask you, I thought it was only me who had an A-Z of ailments! I'm up to the letter B (I've been through the alphabet once and have started again) this week I'll mostly be suffering from burping!

Right then, the run: Biff was impressed with the sartorial elegance of our hare, Arguilles who started the run in highly polished black shoes but then was later seen in the pub in muddy wellies! Answers on a post card please. Aimless however managed to show Biff where to go for her obligatory pre-hash wee in the Churchyard, I wonder if some poor soul turned over in their grave. Known for his gentlemanly behaviour, Arguilles went to carefully show K2 and Luscious where to find a bridge to cross the river whilst hoards of other hashers grouped on the bank refusing to be the first to enter the water, Ram Raider said it was an act of cruelty to put this crossing so near the beginning when he wasn't even properly warmed up and the water was deep and cold. Me thinks he does bleat too much - get on with it Ram Raider! Our illustrious GM wasn't any better he relied on Lost to show him where he could mince across with barely a damp trainer, you too Glanni! Lost is apparently a local God as he told me he had been created in Chillaton and how it was an ancient site of hysterical interest and had been a settlement since medieval times, lovely. DoDo had nothing to report on the grounds he was too far away at the back of the longs and felt very ignored, even the dog got away from him. Penny Farting turned up in a skirt, scarily from his own wardrobe. Dingleberry accused his Mum, Luffly, of hiding his torch and also complained of a headache. Luffly said he just can't cope with his Mum being fitter! Hurricane complained that the young and keenies hate the checks, preferring to leave it to others, the young are quick learners aren't they?! Hurricane was also amused by Scupper Sucker wrongly predicting where the run was going to go and his going way off the trail whilst clever old Hurricane waited around and was able to follow the crowd the right way. Should've gone to Specsavers Scupper Sucker! Back in the car park, K2 was treated to a show of manliness and daring do as a man stripped off and then poured a bottle of water over himself! She said she was worried for his health and safety on such a cold night but really she was just disappointed he didn't get his kecks off! Anyway it turned out it was Gymslip from Plympton so no need to get too concerned.

Hash Hush

Exhausted from his skiing holiday and his arduous river crossing the GM presented his Hash Hush from his armchair! He invited K2 to sit on his lap for her 60th birthday serenade, so K2 got some little excitement after all. Wobbly welcomed several virgins including Sarah and Stacey and gave Sam Coombs the almost a virgin sash. He also welcomed Nick, aka Gymslip, and Angie from Plympton. The attempts to name Peter Arbour (apologies if that is not your surname Peter but being a bit deaf I couldn't hear even what H was saying right next to me because of the din!) Anyway Australian women, thumbs up and rugby seemed to be mentioned and I think he was named "Up and Under Sheila"?

Hash Olympics Bash

Last call to buy or pay for your tickets, see Slush.

I feel very troubled about what to wear to this year's Bash, shall I don fancy dress and turn up as a) Russian shot putter, b) Beach Volley Ball player or c) synchronised swimmer complete with rubber swim hat and nose plugs. Alternatively I could put a tray round my neck and sell Lark's Tongues, Badger's Noses Sorry that was the Roman Games.

And finally ...

There was a heat for the 200m Olympic women's breaststroke, and the eight women who entered the race were named Emily (Aus), Maggie (Nz), Liz (Aus), Jean (USA), Alice (Can), Wanda (Ger), Tina (Rom) and Rose (England).

After approximately 2 minutes and 10 seconds, Emily won the race, 5 seconds later; Maggie was declared the second place finisher. Nearly 40 minutes later, Rose finally completed the race.

When the reporters asked why it took her so long to complete the race, she replied, 'I don't want to sound like I'm a sore loser, but I think those two other girls were using their arms.'
