The Battle of Wounded Knee

First of all I must say a big thank you to Come Forward & Chopper for setting an excellent hash, around the nether regions of Grenofen Bridge and Double Waters. The bit in the really boggy bit was absolutely brilliant. Hurricane spent several hours pulling damsels in distress out of the mire, and thoroughly enjoyed himself doing it. Talk about a pig in shit!!

However, this was all overshadowed by the night of testosterone fuelled savagery, barbarity and violence; along with a wee drop of spilt blood. Nipple Deep and Posh Pinny (who weren't even running, due to self-inflicted foot wounds) got the ball rolling by viciously driving their car into a ditch. Several hashers were on hand to help push the car out again. No damage to the car, but a lovely gash to Hot Rocks knee. Sir Wobbly de Knob also suffered damage (Osteochondritis Dissecans) in the region of the patella, along with a good blood flow. In fact, more blood than a bloody thing. This made Hot Rocks injury look like a scratch. On All 4's tried to join in with some knee damage by falling over in the river - twice, but obviously the fast flowing water was able to clean out any nastiness. On All 4's on all fours in the river led to some very damp underwear. So much so that he had to go Commando in the pub. There's nothing like giving 'the bits' a good airing after a hash. It's good for the heart and soul. So now he's a Ninja Turtle. On All 4's (again) was allegedly chasing after the Virgin Mary's friend (Fallen Angel) to try and compare injuries. Allegedly the best injury of the night was sustained by mOOse (time to cross your legs boys). He claimed to have sustained a punctured testicle, having been pushed by a small penist into a bush. Rumours were that he was actually trying to do a DIY Prince Albert that sort of went wrong - very wrong!

Calling all hashers under the age of 40. There are 3 reasons when you know you are getting old. Firstly, like Sturmeroid, Sir Wobbly de Knob and DoDo, you will stand around before the hash discussing which brand of surgical stockings you need to keep all your legs and feet hanging together in a very serious manner.

Secondly, you lose all ability to do simple things whilst driving. Can't Remember managed to stall the car several times, and failed to do hill starts on the road up from Grenofen Bridge to The Half Way House.

Thirdly, you say very inappropriate things to your boss at work. Apparently Biff, asked her boss if she could come in his office and inspect his equipment, followed very rapidly by calling him The Dregs

Hash Names: It seems that Luffly wants to change her hash name. The bar staff at the Whitchurch Inn called out her name as Lusty. So, let's compromise - how about Lusty Luffly. New hashette, Andrea, can't wait to get a hash name. My suggestion would be Desperate Dan. And get this, Rosie Lloyd has done 42 hashes, and still has no hash name. Committees past and present hang your collective heads in shame. As 42 is the answer to Life, The Universe & Everything, maybe something from The Hitchhiker's Guide to the Universe would be appropriate - Zaphod, Hoopy Frood, Bug Blatter Beast of Traal, Belgium or Paranoid Android. I'll let you decide.

The Slush Hush

Apparently there was a plant & cake sale last Saturday at Lusty Luffly's (JCB's and dumper trucks were buy one get one free). Apparently the cake and coffee weren't too bad either.

Apparently there were no new runners. However, there are at least 2 new hashettes tonight. Welcome to Katie & Steph (if they turned up).

Apparently there is a climbing evening coming up at the Milton Abbott Climbing Barn. I think the cost is approx. £6.00 plus a bit extra for the bar-b-q after. See On All 4's for more details.

Apparently there was dissent in the ranks as Happy Birthday was sung to Crumpet's down down, and the Down Down song was sung for Krakow's birthday. So maybe we should just have one song to cover both occasions. How about:

She's a hasher to you,
She's so happy and blue,
Here's a down down dear Crumpet,
We'll drink it with you.
Get it down down down down down down down down down.....
