Is There A Doctor In The House?

What a day. What a night. Sitting at work on Monday afternoon I was feeling kind of sorry for Wun Hung Lo and Nipple Deep, out there in the howling wind and rain. Having spent several cold hours setting the perfect hash, it all went to rat shit as there was a hefty dump of snow rendering the trail totally useless. Coal dust would have been a good substitute, although Fergie's idea was to get her dogs to leave steaming piles of very smelly doggy do do's in the car park for the hares to use. Torches would not have been needed, just a pair of nostrils. The hash was described by Barney Trubble as a 'A bit follow the leader' - No chance of short cutting then, although Wun Hung Lo did tell me the hash was one big short cut. Sturmer, looking slightly dazed and confused was wondering if the flour was on the snow or was the snow on the flour. At one point World War Three broke out as there were snowballs (flourballs?) flying in all directions. The worst casualty was the person who, running along the leat slipped over, got up slipped over, again, got up and slipped over for a third time, before gracefully sliding in the leat. My informants let me down badly here as this slippery slidy person has to remain anonymous. All I know is that it was one of the keenies younger members of the hash. You know who you are. Everyone look for the person blushing whilst reading the hash mag tonight. Chimney Kate was also a casualty suffering from frost bitten toes. Does anyone want to volunteer their armpits / groin to help Kate out? Although the hash was a bit of a disaaaaaaster, darling, everyone who was there had a good time.

The weather also ensured that there was a larger than usual sick parade this week, beautifully described by Lost as the Chunky Jumper Brigade, and YES I am going to name and shame. Here goes:

Me (Hairycane) - Gastroeneritis - the screaming shits.

Scupper Sucker - Cricked Neck & baby-sitting Pimp.

Pimp - Baby-sitting Scupper Sucker.

Biff - Sore knee. Strange that both Pimp & Biff weren't running. They usually run together. May be they are telepathetic Luffly - Celebrating the purchase of the new marital home - Rumpy Pumpy Cottage at Weir Quay. Clearly saving her energies.

Russ Abbott - Old & Wise, but he is going on holiday with Sir Alex Ferguson.

Cannon Fodder - The disappearing kidney, high blood pressure, hymen. Is he alive?

Well Laid - Mouldy socks after the trench foot hash at Mary Tavy.

Can't Remember - In the pub - Cos that's what she does!!!

Windy & Racey - Couldn't be bothered to leave the house

Laura Hornblower & Nipple Deep - Momentary Lapse of Reason - Left their valuables in the pub at the end of the evening.

Gone but not forgotten:

Wobbly Knob - Gastroenteritis. Vomiting at 30,000 feet on the way to Spain. Niiicce.

Grand Pa - Facial injuries whilst 'bird watching' in The Canaries. Keep your eyes on the road Jack Did anyone notice that Drake Hash were in the Burrator Inn last week? All 5 of them.
